CROZIER

Crozier Appoints Tom Hale as General Manager and Senior Vice President

New York, February 22, 2018 – Crozier Fine Arts, an Iron Mountain Incorporated (NYSE: IRM) company and the nation’s leading fine art storage and logistics provider is pleased to announce that Tom Hale has been appointed general manager and senior vice president. Hale joins Crozier from London and New York-based Lisson Gallery where he served as global commercial director. Prior to this role, he held the position of vice president of Sales and Development at Uovo and earlier worked at London’s White Cube gallery and fine art services company Momart. He began his career as an art handler working with London artists including Damien Hirst, Antony Gormley and Lucien Freud.

“As the industry leader, we continuously seek opportunities to improve the experiences of our clients, to innovate as we preserve and protect the integrity of art, and to ensure we have the very best talent in the industry,” said Ted MacLean, executive vice president and general manager, Adjacent Businesses at Iron Mountain. “Tom brings the right balance of operational acumen and industry expertise to drive our business forward. Under his leadership we will accelerate our ability to serve our clients in new and innovative ways.”

“Crozier’s history, expertise and long tradition of putting the client first, while always respecting the artist’s intent, sets it apart in an extremely competitive market,” commented Hale. “I am looking forward to leading the Crozier team as it expands not only to better serve our clients but also as it shapes the future direction of our industry.”

Hale’s responsibilities will include oversight and leadership of all North American functions at Crozier, including sales, marketing, operations, IT, finance and human resources as well as managing client satisfaction, revenue and business results. He will work closely with Simon Hornby, president of Crozier, who will continue to lead Crozier’s global business development efforts, including the exploration and pursuit of new partnerships, business acquisitions and solution offerings for Crozier clients.
